LEWIS BOOM FOR A. F. L. PRESIDENCY UNDERGOES SLUMP

341 EXPECTED VOTES ARE SWITCHED TO GOMPERS WEDNESDAY.

SPLIT ADMITTED

Veteran Leader's Followers Claim 10,000 More Than Needed to Elect.

Denver.—After a stormy debate the American Federation of Labor convention dispersed of the Irish question by adopting a resolution—affirmed of its most drastic boycott provisions—expressing sympathy for the Irish cause. Irish sympathizers, supporting a resolution calling for a boycott against British goods, were overwhelmingly defeated in an attempt to have the convention overthrown, a matter made by President Gompers, which prevented reconsideration of their proposal.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Denver.—The John L. Lewis boom for the presidency of the American Federation of Labor Wednesday took a slump.

Under instructions from their executive board, the delegates of the Ladies' Garment Workers switched their 341 votes from the Lewis supporters admitted their own delegation would be split, they claimed sufficient votes had been pledged by the metal trades, the railroad organizations, the machinists, union and the carpenters to elect their candidate. Their line-up gave them approximately 25,000 of the 35,294 votes in the convention.

Chain Enough to Win.
Gompers supporters were claiming the railway carriers, railway clerks, and electrical workers—three of the largest railroad organizations. The boiler-makers, all the printing trades and the federal employes unions, the building, trades organizations, with the exception of the carpenters and maulers unions, also were listed as supporting the veteran labor chief.

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers have been placed in the Lewis column. The Gompers boomers declared they were wary of at least 5,000 votes to permit manufacture and sale of beer. Officers and the executive council were instructed to work for a change in the law, and this should not be binding on the convention. The convention went on record late Tuesday as favoring total exclusion of Japanese and other orientals from the United States.

Sims Arrived Home, Sans All Demonstration

New York.—Rear Admiral Sims returned home today to explain to Secretary Denby remarks attributed to him in his recent London speech on Irish Americans.

Everything was peaceful when the veteran sailor landed. A thousand blue coats were massed on the dock to receive him.

Pollen lines were drawn several blocks north and south of the pier entrance. Flanked by police he rode along to take the first train for Washington.

There was scarcely anyone on the pier. From a handful of passengers who had gathered there came neither cheers nor demonstrations.

Mr. Sims accompanied him home. He chatted with newspaper men on the way up from quarantine and seemed in the belief that the trip to New York had been a success. He passed a sound steamer whose passengers lined the rail. Across the stretch came the sound of cheers for Sims.

HARDING TO STUDY NEGRO QUESTION

When summoned a few days ago to the training camp of the champion boxer of Europe, and then only a day or two later to the camp of the champion boxer of America, I was frankly prejudiced against what I conceived to be the brutal sport of prize fighting. My prejudice, like that of a great many others, was based entirely upon hearsay and on the conventionalized and stereotyped picture of the prize fighter which we find in fiction and on the stage. A caricature of the prize fighter, and not the prize fighter himself, was the picture of the prize fighter which I had never seen a prize fighter in his own person.

I rather disliked the notion of visiting these two champions and it is proper to say that I sneaked down to Atlantic City and out to Manassas, Long Island, to find out, if possible, just what all this fuss was about. I had never seen a prize fighter in his own person, and I was not prepared to see one in his own person.

POLITICS SIZZLES IN LEGISLATURE AS END NEARS

TENSE SITUATION AS HEAT OF CONFLICT AND WEATHER MEET.

KILL OFF BILLS

Justifiable Homicide for Much Legislation Is Result of Session.

By STEPHEN HOLLES.
Madison.—Between politics, heat, sweat, a continued stream of what a perverted imagination, terms, eloquence, the legislature is passing into high temperature and a condition that presages early death.

When the legislature of the present legislature is written, it will be with a skull and cross bones over "Life Jacket," on the tombstone.

Justifiable Homicide.
It will be noted as the legislature body that killed without mercy, at times, and always deliberately. The legislature is guilty of justifiable homicide, in a hundred of its actions. The administration forces are crazy over the idea of a surplus. Like a famous soap ad, they won't be happy 'til they get it. They tried to surtax the state as a piggy bank. They tried it again on other bills. They tried it again on the park bill Wednesday and failed.

As to Auto Tax.
On the tax matter it has become a question of the auto tax of the surplus. Therefore it will be the auto tax. Members admit that it is a makeshift, that it is not good legislation, that it does not meet with the approval of the legislature. The measure of the legislature is not a makeshift, but it is the only measure that has been proposed that will clear the highway deficit. Politics got in its way. The legislature is not a makeshift, but it is the only measure that has been proposed that will clear the highway deficit.

Morgan and a communication to the governor, to the senate and to the assembly. To the legislative bodies he made request that he be authorized to bring these actions. The assembly went into a fever. Mr. Morgan's resolution was the introduction. He said that the governor had taken no steps in the case when he was attorney general for two years and there was no likelihood that he would do so.

Delavan Has 250 Insurance Folk at Meet

Delavan.—More than 250 men and women attended the annual insurance men's convention which opened here Tuesday night at a two days session at the Highland. Those who attended were members of three organizations, the state, local and field insurance agents. C. L. Easton, Milwaukee, state insurance commissioner, and Walter Bennett, secretary of the national association, were the principal speakers.

Narrowly Escape Injury

Three weeks old baby and a large crowd of pedestrians narrowly escaped serious injury when the Klug car, which was parked in front of the hotel here Tuesday night, was struck by another car, throwing the Klug car across the street and up on the sidewalk. Several men pushed the car back and saved it from crashing through a store window.

Mrs. A. A. Jacobs and daughter, Martha, returned last week from Milwaukee where they had been to attend the graduation exercises at Marquette University from which Bernard Jacobs, a nephew of Mrs. Jacobs, graduated.

Ertle Referee for Big Fight

The Hanson bill permitting cities to create milk depots and take over entire distribution of milk was defeated in the senate, 13 to 7. The bill was introduced by Senator John S. Owen, Eau Claire. The proposal passed the assembly with the understanding that it be constitutionally tested by the supreme court.

The assembly passed the bill to prohibit manufacturers from assigning territorial rights to agents in Wisconsin.

Woman Named Customs Agent
Washington.—President Harding's first nomination of a woman to be collector of customs was sent to the senate Wednesday when he named Jennie P. Musser, collector for district number 18, with headquarters at Salt Lake City.

WONT MAKE PEGGY TESTIFY IN COURT

Chicago.—Peggy Hopkins Joyce will not be compelled to leave New York to testify in her proceedings against James Stanley Joyce, her millionaire husband, whom she is suing for $10,000 a month temporary alimony and $100,000 collector's fees with which to prosecute her cross bill for separate maintenance in reply to a suit for annulment of their marriage, filed by Joyce, Judge Sabath ordered a writ of habeas corpus for Joyce, asking that Peggy be ordered to appear.

"SHINE" BRINGS GIRL HERE FROM GREECE TO MARRY

George Chapalas shines shoes in his little establishment in Janesville.

As he applied the daubing, used the brush and shining rags, he sang a ditty or two and dreamed of far off Greece. Not that he longed to go back there. Not George. Every time the cash register clicked a merry tune and 15 cents dropped in the till, he sang with a little more cheer.

Over in the court house Wednesday there was a marriage license application for George Chapalas and Mary D. Pappas, recently arrived from Greece.

Other applications were filed by John Floyd Whitmore, Bradford and Mabelle E. Taylor, Johnson, August Weber, Jr. and Agnes Thiele, Janesville.

HOUSE ENGROSSES FIRST ROAD BILL

Many Amendments Beaten Before Vote Gives Life to Highway Tax Measure.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Madison.—The first highway privilege tax bill, expected to raise $4,000,000 annually from a two percent tax on the valuation of all automobiles in the state, was referred in the assembly Wednesday 53 to 35, and then, after a stormy session, was engrossed, 56 to 33.

Reconsideration was beaten, but it is held certain the measure will go through. Acceptance of the first proposal completes the adoption of the entire finance committee program which the committee claims will meet the additional taxes for the coming two years unnecessarily.

Fourteen amendments were offered on the floor, practically all going down to defeat. One amendment, offered by Assemblyman Campbell, stipulating that no salaries of highway workers be raised during the next biennium, was adopted, 48 to 27.

Line Up on Surtax Basis.
The fight of friends of the surtax, for the most part, and its opponents. Assemblyman Dahl, author of the income surtax proposals, fought the first bill vigorously. He declared the surtax was placing an unjust burden on the owner of the small automobile, and withdrawing taxable property from local tax rolls.

Behind the bill showed the proposal was in effect a bill to remove the personal property offset on cars and that it was a measure to lower taxes.

Provision was provided for meeting the federal aid of $1,700,000 for this year, and $2,500,000 which will be needed next year.

County highway bonds are abolished. County high road construction and maintaining roads placed on the automobile.

Parks Strike Snare.
Park trusts struck a snag in the senate but managed to pull through the first bill, with appointment of special senate committee to work out a method of financing the parks. An attempt to introduce a bill making application of the law governing the state park system in the senate failed to pass.

Defeat Milk Bill.
The Hanson bill permitting cities to create milk depots and take over entire distribution of milk was defeated in the senate, 13 to 7.

The assembly passed the bill to prohibit manufacturers from assigning territorial rights to agents in Wisconsin.

Woman Named Customs Agent

Tells of Man's Cruelty

Mrs. Cora Orthwein, photographed during the trial.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Chicago.—Mrs. Cora Orthwein late Tuesday took the stand in her trial for the murder of H. P. Ziegler, describing in detail the cruelty which she said was visited on her by Ziegler. She told of being mercilessly beaten while she and Ziegler were returning from a roadhouse, in March, 1920, and showed the jury several scars on her face and head.

A man who attempted to rescue her was beaten by Ziegler, she declared. Her testimony was substantiated, in effect, by that of Miss Rosamond Dove, said to have been a companion of the man who attempted the rescue.

Mayor T. E. Welsh sprung the sensation of the railroad commission's grade crossings hearing at the city hall here Wednesday, when he declared that the city of Janesville as a whole is opposed to the proposal to build a big viaduct across the Northwestern depot, close up two crossings and construct pedestrian subways at the Five Points and Academy streets.

He characterized the plan as "proposed by the First ward citizens' committee," and declared numerous citizens are prepared to fight it through the courts in case the commission, O. Kedie, H. Pedersen subways are out of the question, he said.

"If we're going to have a subway at all let's have one big enough to accommodate all traffic," he declared.

KING AND QUEEN OPEN PARLIAMENT IN NORTH IRELAND

BRITISH MONARCH PRESENTS AND SPEAKS AT BELFAST SESSION.

BRILLIANT EVENT

Anniversary of Coronation Observed by First Visit to Ulster in Score of Years.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Belfast.—King George and Queen Mary, journeying from England for the occasion on the tenth anniversary of their coronation, presided at the state opening of the Ulster parliament here Wednesday. It was the first time in 20 years that Ulster had had an opportunity of receiving the sovereigns of the British empire and its welcome helped make the occasion memorable.

The ceremony was a brilliant spectacle and a distinguished assembly watched an event regarded as marking an important epoch in Irish history. Sinn Fein and nationalist members of the parliament did not participate in the ceremony.

The visit of the King and Queen to Belfast was looked on as a fitting observance of their coronation anniversary. The king had not been in Belfast since he came here in 1902 as the Duke of York and he and his consort were given a royal welcome. The people of county Down, on the south side of the Lough, and county Antrim, on the northern shore, vied with each other in extending greetings. As the monarchs left their vessel, the royal salute boomed out and the crowds that lined the long street leading to the city hall strained at the barrier walls of soldiery and police to catch a glimpse of the procession.

Troops Guard Monarchs
On each side of the street was stationed a force of nearly 5,000 regular troops standing shoulder to shoulder in a heavy railing. In other parts of the city police kept vigilant guard against untoward incidents.

Arriving at the city hall the king and queen were met by the lord mayor and members of the Belfast council and the sovereigns proceeded at once to the council room, where the welcoming began.

When the ceremony was completed, the king and queen were entertained at luncheon by Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, after which they were driven on horseback through a star decorated streets to Ulster hall, where they received addresses of loyalty from various organizations.

"I speak from a full heart," said King George, in his speech formally opening the new parliament, "when I pray that my coming to Ireland may prove to be the first step towards an end of strife among our people, whatever their creed."

Hopes for Irish Peace

"In that hope I appeal to all Irishmen to pause, to stretch out the hand of forbearance and conciliation, to forgive and to forgive and to join in making for the land a new era of peace, contentment and good will."

"It is my earnest desire that in southern Ireland, too, the same spirit of peace should prevail to what is now passing in this hall; that there a similar occasion may present itself and a similar ceremony be performed."

King George and Queen Mary departed for London at 4 p. m.

Firing Draws Police

The police in the Upper Falls district, hearing firing in that area, pursued eight men they suspected and captured three of them, who were found to have ammunition in their possession.

Gen. C.H. Taylor, Editor Boston Globe, Is Dead

Boston.—General Charles H. Taylor, editor and publisher of the Boston Globe, died Wednesday.

General Taylor had been editor of the Globe since 1873. Born July 14, 1846, and educated at the public schools, he came to Boston through learning the printer's trade. He was a compositor on the Boston Herald when the Civil War broke out in 1861. When he was wounded, returning to Boston, he became a reporter on the Traveller. His work as a special correspondent in Cuba, Mexico and other parts of the world, and his appointment as the Boston representative of The New York Tribune and other papers, had become secretary to Governor Claflin and a member of his staff, was elected to the legislature, and was serving as a clerk of the house of representatives when he accepted the editorship of the Globe.

The title of "General" came with his services as brigadier general on the staff of Governor Russell.

General Taylor for several years was part owner of the Boston American league baseball club. He was first vice-president of the Associated Press in 1905-6 and served as a director of that organization from 1907 to 1912, when he again was made vice-president.

U. S. FAVORS WORLD COURT OF JUSTICE

International Tribunal, Though Created by League, Smiled Upon in Washington.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette.

Washington.—The United States government looks with friendly eyes on the establishment of the world court of international justice, even though that body has been created by the League of Nations. The Harding administration, fearful of the wrath of the "irreconcilables," will not openly lend its influence to the establishment of the court, but the council of the League of Nations has predicted that the United States will support the Washington government much more than it has in the past.

Oscar Straus, the permanent American member of the League of Nations, said in a speech before the Senate on June 16, that the United States will support the Washington government much more than it has in the past. He said that the United States will support the Washington government much more than it has in the past. He said that the United States will support the Washington government much more than it has in the past.

The department of state has made it clear that the United States government is watching the development of the court and, while the fact that the court was made possible by the League of Nations is a fact, it is not a fact that the United States government is watching the development of the court.

Could not satisfy all. The small nations always refused to be subordinated and the large powers declined to see the court made up of representatives of small countries. The solution came when the council and the assembly of the League of Nations actually made such a separation. The nations, large and small, have been working since the peace conference to the upper and lower house, so as to speak, of the League of Nations, and now while negotiations are made by the council, they must be ratified by the assembly.

Once the judges are named the international court has really nothing more to do with the League of Nations. It is absolutely separate from any political organization and is intended to be a supreme court of the world making its own decisions irrespective of national interests and only for the common good based upon right principles of law. The belief is growing that once the court is on its feet and a going concern, the Harding administration will not hesitate to submit disputes to that body. It will be difficult for America to refuse to do so if any dispute would arise with some member of the League of Nations which wants to let the international court decide the question at issue.

The purpose of the international court is to deal with purely legal questions. It is true that many wars have resulted from the failure of nations to get together on questions of law. The international court will not deal with political or strictly sentimental questions, but will render its decisions on a mass of problems which have hitherto gone unsolved and have sooner or later kindled the fires of international hatred and misunderstanding.

The republican party has again and again pledged itself to help make an international court, although the covenant of the League of Nations provided for the creation of such a tribunal. There were many speeches of criticism made when the peace covenant and treaty were made public and it was found that the international court was left to the future. It was partly as a result of that criticism and partly because of the desire of foreign governments to get the court started that the opponents of the plan decided not to wait for American ratification of the peace treaty but to let the League of Nations go ahead and start the court as a private citizen and distinguished jurist to frame a constitution for the new court.

League Not "Dead." Mr. Root spent most of last summer in Europe working on the plan which is now bearing fruit. It was while Mr. Root was in London that he called Mr. Harding. It would be unwise to pronounce the League of Nations "dead" for it was already proving its usefulness in making the international court a reality after years of futile effort in that direction.

Mr. Harding, however, being unfamiliar with what Mr. Root was discussing on the other side of the Atlantic, made a speech shortly after the election echoing Senator Lodge's statement that the league was "dead." Mr. Harding confirmed this later on but in now of course insisted that the president was expressing an opinion only so far as the United States is concerned. In other words the league technically doesn't exist with respect to America and Ambassador George Harvey added a sentence to the funeral oration recently when he said that the Harding administration would not deal with the league directly or indirectly. The foreign powers have since sent all their communications through other channels and the league device adopted by the Council of the League when it wishes to reach the American government is to address a note to the supreme council on which America is represented.

Crops in County Have Never Looked Better, Say Farmers

Never in history have crops looked better, say experienced Rock county farmers. If the farmer has a market for his grain this fall, he is certain of a profitable year.

Corn during the last three weeks has grown by leaps and bounds, and during the last week has grown as much as two inches in 24 hours.

The fields of wheat, oats, barley, and rye show heavy stands, indicating of heavy yields. Clover and hay is being cut this week, and most of the first cut of alfalfa is now complete. The last of the tobacco has been set out or will be by the end of the week.

Black Stem Rust

Black stem rust is appearing in some of the rye fields in Rock county. It has not developed yet in barley or oats to any noticeable extent. This rust is a very serious disease and is known as red rust and does not do serious damage.

The black stem rust which caused so much shiveled grain in the crops of 1919-20, wintered over in the common burberry and attacks the grain in a favorable season in June.

The early grain will doubtless make a good crop before the black stem rust develops to any great extent. The late grain will probably be infected to some extent. Weather conditions control the rapidity of black stem rust in the grain.

Blight on Apple Trees

Fire-blight on apple trees is prevalent in practically all the orchards in Rock county. The blight is noticed by the leaves dying on the tips of the branches.

Fire-blight, which is known under a good many names, such as blossom blight and pear blight, is caused by bacteria which enter the branch at the time of blossoming. The bacteria multiply very rapidly in warm moist weather such as Rock county had early this season.

The bacteria are carried by bees and insects. Ordinary spraying has no effect on fire-blight. It can be kept down by the insects which distribute the bacteria.

After the bacteria enter the limb they develop rather rapidly, and the first outward sign of them is the dying of the leaves.

Use Pruning Knife

The only known remedy is the pruning knife. The infected parts of the tree should be cut off. This should be done as soon as possible; but in no case should dead limbs be allowed to remain until next spring. The bacteria live over winter on the edges of the dead wood. In cutting off this dead wood it is necessary to cut the limb back a foot beyond the infection.

The pruning shears should be dipped in a solution of corrosive sublimate, 1 to 1000—after every cut. All the infected parts of the tree which are not cut off should be burned. This disease, while not fatal to the tree the first year, if allowed to continue will eventually kill susceptible varieties.

1,497 GRADUATE AT U. W. WEDNESDAY

Number Is 28 Percent Increase Over Any Former Year at State University.

[By Associated Press.]

Madison.—Commencement exercises at the University of Wisconsin were held Wednesday for the 1,497 graduates of the year, who ended their undergraduate days and received their degrees as members of the class of 1921. This is the third class graduated from the university.

Never before in the history of the institution has there been such a large number of graduates. A total of 1,192 diplomas were granted. In addition to 344 degrees conferred since last June, an increase of 28 percent over any preceding year.

Graduation exercises were marked by simplicity. Held address to the class was given by President R. A. Blake, who conferred the degrees following prayer by Bishop Samuel Fallows of the class of '20.

Valedictory orations were delivered by Rachel Hunk of the college of letters and science, Ernest Blumenthal of the college of engineering and Lyman E. Jackson for the college of agriculture.

Commencement procession. These exercises, preceding the granting of diplomas, came after the commencement procession, which wended its way from the bottom of University hall, past Bascom hall and out over Observatory hill, had reached the pavilion. The procession was led by the president, regents, Governor Blaine and the faculty.

Comparison with recent years shows 1,154 graduates this June, 93 last June, and 606 in 1919. The 1,497 degrees for the entire year is to be compared with 1,070 last year and the previous high total of 1,106 in 1914-15.

Of the 1,497 degrees, diplomas and certificates granted on Wednesday and during the year, 1,135 were bachelor or other first degrees; 187 were master or other second degrees; 48 were doctors' degrees, five were honorary degrees and 121 were short course certificates.

Over 530 women were included among the 1,497 graduates, 478 of them receiving their degrees today. There were 10 women who received higher degrees, including five doctors' degrees.

New Regents Elected

Walter J. Kohler, of Kohler, was elected president of the board of regents for the ensuing year. Ben F. Frost, of Eau Claire, was elected vice president, Maurice J. McCaffray, of Madison, was elected secretary, and Halston J. Forkelson, of Madison, business manager.

The board of regents reappointed J. E. McConnell, of LaCrosse, as one of its four representatives on the board of visitors for the university for the term ending July 1, 1922.

HIGH TIDE MARKS BIG GULF STORM

Galveston Nervous as Storm Sweeps Coast; Shippers Not Alarmed.

Galveston.—Little damage was anticipated in shipping circles here from the storm which struck the Texas coast Tuesday night. At daybreak here the wind was blowing in gusts of 35 to 40 miles an hour, with dashes of rain. The tide was two feet above normal and heavy seas were rolling in from the gulf.

High tides and strong winds were reported from Corpus Christi, Brownsville and other coast points, but the situation has not reached a dangerous stage.

The storm created little excitement here. Interurban and railroad officials reported a slight increase of passenger traffic out of Galveston Wednesday morning, however.

GRAIN SHIPPERS TO MEET THIS WEEK

Tri-State Convention Will Take Place in Minneapolis June 23, 24, 25.

Minneapolis.—Meeting in one of the most important conventions ever held by that body, the Tri-State County Grain Shippers association will convene in annual session here June 23, 24 and 25. County grain shippers from North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin, which make up the association, are expected to be well represented. About 1,500 delegates are expected at the convention, according to J. H. Adams, secretary of the association.

Importance of the meeting will be emphasized by the position taken during the convention in regard to the newly created Farm Bureau federation. Taken as a whole, the grain shippers' association is unalterably opposed to the federation and its collaborator, the Committee of Seventeen. Mr. Adams said both he and A. E. Reynolds, chairman of the legislative committee of the Grain Dealers' National Association of Toledo, will speak at length on this subject, he said.

Non-Partisan League Idea.—Secretary Adams charged that the Farm Bureau federation scheme, as followed out now, is the same plan sponsored by the Nonpartisan league some time ago, although league leader "are not all the head of the affair."

"We trade in grain," Mr. Adams stated, "costs a lot of money. This federation sent out 2,000 salesmen to sell stock. One third of the money derived from such stock sales went to commission to the agents. The little that is left is not to be thought of as enough for working capital for an organization such as that, which run on the right basis, would require millions of dollars.

"It has been proved that every time a new system is tried out with inexperienced men, and these men are not experienced grain traders, the net cost is much higher. This federation will result in smaller returns for the producer and a higher cost to the consumer.

"Under this plan there is no competition, and without that the grain trade cannot be carried on successfully. This system strikes at the very heart of the country elevator system, and this unbridled, theoretical plan is nothing short of bolshevistic."

Would Balk Propaganda.—The grain shippers' secretary declared he saw no fault with the work of the county agents as a help to the federation, but he said the federation plan to offer the incorrect propaganda would be a failure.

"Right today, with the double cost of marketing grain at these former co-operative elevators, grain is handled cheaper at a line elevator, even though the heads of the co-operative elevators do not want to admit it," he said.

"To bring before the public and the farmer and enlighten them as to the exact effects of the federation," Mr. Adams declared, a joint meeting would be held within a month by the following organization: "To formulate plans to offer the incorrect propaganda sent out by the federation."

The Millers National Federation; Feed and Grain Dealers National Association; Hay Dealers National Association; American Wholesale Grocers' Association; Chamber of Commerce of the United States and many other similar organizations of a regional character.

than I can tell, for the man is almost womanly in his gentleness of behavior and speech and his big-brotherly or almost motherly solicitude for Georges and Carpenter himself, in voice, mind, manner and appearance, is the very antithesis of the old formula. Even veterans of the ring refuse to conform to the stereotype. James J. Corbett could never shock the sensibilities of a refined person, and "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien, who happened to be at Dempsey's camp when I was there, looks, acts and speaks more like an army major in civilian clothes or a college instructor or (at times) with his class, the American champion himself, though not what you would call a pretty youth, does make a respectable looking young man whose ordinary conversation seems notably free from the cant, side pat and slang one anticipates from the "prize fighter" at story end.

principals themselves, the officials and the spectators—fifty thousand of them—impressed me as the equals of any to be seen at a ball game or football game anywhere.

Boxing vs. Football.
Having seen Carpenter and Dempsey box with various partners, and having seen the little Buffalo whirlwind chase the American lightweight champion around the squared circle for twelve busy rounds, each lasting three minutes—and long minutes they were for Leonard, some of them—I regret to announce that there is nothing brutal about boxing or professional exhibitions as now staged. It is true, perhaps, that there is some little risk of personal injury involved in a boxing contest. That does not mean that the game is brutal, for there is certainly a greater risk of injury to the contestants in an American football game.

Carpenter's Appearance.
Carpenter looks rather pale or wan, as a healthy youth usually looks. A patent medicine "specialist" would at once prescribe iron or something for him. But, believe me, there is nothing the matter with his blood. Dempsey has cold hands. He didn't complain of them, but I noticed they were a little cold, as the hands of a healthy young athlete, usually feel. If your face lost the color of a magazine girl's face or if your hands are sometimes a little cold, you can claim that same resemblance to the champion boxer of Europe or America.

ACE A good thing to lead—especially if it's a solitaire.

DEUCE Can certainly make a lot of trouble no matter who plays it.

TREY Something they all expect after you get them—with breakfast.

Mr. Jack Dempsey has the larger chest and the greater vital capacity. He can put forth the greater effort. But M. Georges Carpentier has the larger and better developed heart. He can endure the greater physical strain. From my point of view the ductless gland equipment of the French champion and that of the American champion, and the man who happens to have the more efficient adrenal gland is pretty sure to win. Now it only remains to decide which of these two great contenders for the world championship heavyweight boxing title is blessed with the essential glandular superiority. But first let us consider the qualifications of each man separately.

Do You Want Good Health?

Chiropractic Points the Way

It seems a pity that one and all of suffering humanity cannot be shown all at once just what Chiropractic is, and what it is doing for the afflicted. Those who know the science, its basic principles and its worth as a whole, they can appreciate what this would mean. It is hard to estimate how many thousands of lives could be saved; how many useless operations could be averted, and what-not. Now this much is certain, friends, if you will allow yourself to employ good, sound reasoning and argue things out for yourself, you cannot fail to see that this science is all that is claimed for it. You will be advised otherwise, but don't let adverse criticism interfere with your own good common sense, it may mean much to you. If after you have read and learned of Chiropractic, you are not convinced, remember that adjustments can do you no harm, and we know that conviction will come after you have had a course of adjustments.

Brunson seeks the custody of the children. The couple were married in Dixon, Ill., June 5, 1915.

POLITICS SIZZLE AS LEGISLATURE CLOSES

County. He lambasts the super-heated air of the assembly chamber and tells the breathless legislators that did not vote money general go across the hall to the governor and ask him about it and not come to the assembly?

No Carpet Worn Out.
Mark Cattan, of Outagamie, long an ardent supporter of the governor, said he had heard that every body knew that the carpet between the attorney general's office and that of the governor was worn out. And then came the bill to increase the salary of the attorney general by one, 10 to 15, with Oakes and some others who apparently were afraid of the cause not voting.

This was a little thing. The attorney general said he was not going to vote for the bill. He had gone to the executive and legislative bodies. But for a political point the assembly turned the matter down.

Very early and touchy these days Tuesday morning the assembly turned down the sure tax riders, swept the Milwaukee market bill into the waste basket and turned a number of bills to the executive's desk.

The Hay Field Calls
Wednesday was a full day. Members chafed Tuesday and a score or more wanted to get home. They were told to wait until the hay field called.

There was a movement for a night session. No one wanted to work in the heat of the day. A call of the house was ordered. Members came in and sat down listlessly and unenthusiastically. Then a gentleman's agreement was made to adjourn until 9 o'clock Wednesday.

Money Wins in Senate
When the senate got into form on Wednesday it at once passed the Morgan resolution and any satisfaction the governor got out of the assembly was nullified in part. The assembly laid the resolution on the table. The government would have lost out here too, but that Wallace Ingham, who is not an administrator, man, is a public antagonist to the Morgan opposed the attorney general.

Three Days More
It is understood that there are but three days more of the legislative session. When the day enforcement has finally been acted upon the Milwaukee delegation will take a trip and not come back. The senate refused to give the governor the home still. It cut out the assembly amendment. Huber and Olson, the governor's two friends in the senate, said they could not follow the governor beyond the constitution of the United States. The bill comes back to the assembly on the question of whether the lower house will recede from its amendment. If it recedes and the senate amendment will go to conference and there is likely to be a deadlock. If the assembly recedes then the bill will come up for passage with the home bill and family still omitted. When it gets to the governor it may be said that he will linger long about a veto. The general opinion is that there will be no chance for a dry bill this session.

Too Hot to Make Laws
The senate has been and is, strongly against the administration. The general matters has a small majority in opposition to the socialist program. The test of strength will come when the amended marketing bill finally comes to a vote. No one need envy a member of the legislature these days since no adequate means of ventilating the chamber seems to have been devised and the hot air of the oratory does not cool the place.

Summer is here! No news in that, says the reader. Wednesday not only started the season of the year when the sun's rays are the hottest but it will end the first week of the present year. The temperature for the past seven days has averaged 60.3 degrees.

Although the mercury climbed steadily Wednesday from 58 degrees at 8 o'clock to 63 degrees at 2 o'clock, one of the quickest rises in the present season, a fairly strong breeze from the southwest cleared the humidity of the air and made the day for more comfortable than any for a week. The drop in "stickiness" was welcome after a night of extreme calm with the sultry drizzle and the light breeze.

The sun blazed in all its fury in unshaded places making asphalt pavements soft and oozy and other hotter than the thermometer. Burning dew on the sidewalks in the sun registered 101 at noon.

Tuesday's light shower here was very heavy in Beloit. Light rains were also felt in this vicinity Tuesday night, but Janesville was spared. "Mildew" was some of it.

The government's weather service for this district seems to have lost its memory for, as the calendar except not much change in temperature.

While other communities in the central west have been reporting drouth and prostrations from the extended heat record, Janesville has been more fortunate in not having one such case to report. Thursday will mark the second week of the start of the present heat wave.

MAYOR OPPOSES THE R. R. VIADUCT

Pole, elevation engineer; Supt. J. A. MacDonald, Madison division; P. W. Zimmerman, local agent; and W. J. Thiel, assistant solicitor, Nelson J. Wilco appeared as attorney for the Northwestern line and Supt. F. R. Bryington as another representative.

M. O. Mohut and Arthur M. Fisher appeared as counsel for the city. Mount presented affidavits of several who have been injured or have had narrow escapes at grade crossings here. The crossing is at the intersection of two pedestrian subways after 1924 was filed with the commission.

"The sentiment of the council appears to be that High and Jackson street crossings shall remain open," said Attorney Cunningham in presenting the case.

"The people of the Fifth ward would not stand for closing Pleasant street," said Mr. Mohut. "The city will go through the courts to stop it. As a representative of all the citizens, and not of the First ward alone, it is my duty to inform the commission that the city will not stand for the closing of Pleasant street."

"I would be glad to see the viaduct built," said Mr. Mohut. "I never approve of closing six streets to traffic. Why should an order be made no way for a job that can't be carried out for from 3 to 5 or even 10 years?"

Replying to the mayor's statements, Mr. Mount brought out that the matter had been given wide publicity and all the citizens are familiar with it.

"I realize that no plan would ever be accepted by all the people, but the commission should adopt the plan that would be of the greatest good to the greatest number of people," he said. He offered figures to show the conditions of the city and the plan having been endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce as well as the council.

Railroad Man Protests
Appearing as a citizen of the Fifth ward, John J. Kelly, former member of the police and fire commission, said:

"I was yardmaster of the St. Paul for 25 years and I know a lot about the conditions of the city. The people I have talked with say they will never stand for closing Pleasant street."

"This plan doesn't meet the situation. There are other plans. I have talked with many of the people and they are talking about a back number—something 25 years old. All the eastern cities are eliminating them and using other schemes."

J. S. Pfeiffer, of the First ward commission, made a plea for adoption of the viaduct and pedestrian subway plan.

Other citizens were heard in the afternoon.

A DISTINCT LOSS TO EDUCATION.

Not alone will the death of W. C. Daland be mourned at Milton and Milton College. From the pretty college village his influence went to great distances. In the shade of the college buildings and in a small environment he lived, it is true, but the light from that center spread its rays afar. It may be said of him that he never had an influence but for good, and never took a step but for betterment. Hundreds of boys and girls are out in the world fighting battles with strength and spirit received from the influence of President Daland of Milton college. Great is the moment a man like this one who lived among us, has reared, each day adding a new height. And we shall miss him in Wisconsin and here at home and among the students his name will be recalled with the reverence and respect that he won in life.

"Goliath Wins the Grand Prize"—newspaper headline. Apparently David was not around.

LEARNING: SOME THINGS WORTH WHILE, NOT IN BOOKS.

The Boston Transcript calls attention to the failure of the schools and colleges to give a small amount of education to the boys and girls in a branch of knowledge that would be useful almost constantly to the resident anywhere except in a flat in a crowded city and there too, if there could be made room for a few plants. This is the elementary education in the care of trees, shrubs and flowers. Of course this training would not have to do with the training of professionals. It should be for the ordinary citizen, to whom trees, shrubs and flowers stand in the relation of pleasure giver and daily minister. For him there is no expert or understanding instruction. His primary or grammar school may have given him a little superficial smatter of flower study, but no one has ever told him how deep the sap-streak goes into his maple tree, or made him understand why he must not leave a projecting prong when he saws a branch out of the apple-tree, or given him warning of the probable fatal consequences of sousing a pail of water upon the roots of the rose-bush he is planting. In other words, he knows nothing of the principles of life and growth of the plants upon which he lavishes his money and his zealous labor. And the aggregate of the wastage of effort and expenditure on his part and that of men like him all over the country, is appalling.

No doubt the public schools are already over-leaded with courses. That, at least, is a constant complaint. But the study of trees and flowers is so interesting that in some happy schools it has been made to serve the place of diversion, of recreation, with quite wonderful results in the dissemination of useful and saving information. And there would seem to be no insuperable barrier to the establishment of a high school of trees here and there, at which almost any boy or girl might at least learn the rudiments of tree and shrub cultivation and care. It is a thing that comes very easily; the prevailing ignorance of the subject is profound—and this is a department of life in which not ignorance but understanding is bliss.

When school is out we accept a position: later we look for a job.

A NEW NATION INTRODUCED TODAY.

A new "nation" is formally introduced to the world today when the king of Great Britain and Ireland opens the parliament at Belfast. What the name of the new North Ireland government will be has not yet been disclosed as nothing was stated in the Home Rule bill creating it. All the fuss and royal tommyrot of opening the Belfast session is political mockery. Ulster does not want it and has been willing to go on under the old form of one parliament and see the king at London. What the effect will be on the other part of Ireland that prefers to die rather than submit is problematical. It may stimulate the guerilla warfare and instigate more reprisals.

With that part of Ireland—the part which politically has now passed under the dominance of Sinn Fein—Great Britain is now practically at war. The question there is whether the war is to continue indefinitely. Both sides are apparently disposed to continue it indefinitely rather than give in. The rest of the world asks whether one side or the other, or both, can continue it indefinitely. The British government, no doubt, with its vast resources, can so continue it. But the people of Sinn Fein or nationalist Ireland cannot continue it without outside help, for they have no arms or munitions except such as they amass, and their material resources are, without

ARE YOU MOB-MINDED?

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—If you would serve your country and civilization in general, don't follow crowds.

This is the advice of psychologists to the modern man in general, and the American in particular. They say that America is becoming a mob-minded country, and that its progress toward a higher degree of civilization is blocked by this, perhaps more than by any one other thing. The only thing that can save us, according to the scientists, is an increase in the number of individuals who refuse to follow the crowd.

Recent outbreaks of mob violence have attracted widespread attention, and have resulted in much discussion. Bills have been introduced into Congress and into state legislatures to prevent them. And they illustrate the essential peculiarity of the mob-mind—its inferiority. It is well known that in a lynching mob, acts of violence and cruelty are committed by individuals who would not even contemplate them alone. The mob brings to the surface the lowest instincts which are shared by all its members. It is a reversion to savagery.

But the mob of physical violence is only the most obvious mob. We are mob-minded as a people, the psychologists say, in ways less evident and even more dangerous. We all read the same things, eat the same things, wear the same things, hold the same opinions. Most of us are following crowds even when we are alone. There is no crowd in which people are not all alike, look and think so much alike, individuality is rare among us, and we are apt to paralyze it. The man who does not follow the crowd is often called queer and is ostracized. In no other country, we are told, is there so little tolerance for the man who is different. And when we ostracize or shun the man who is different, simply because he is different, we are doing in a less obvious way exactly what the mob did which tarred and feathered a reformer because it did not like the way he managed his own affairs.

We suppress individuality in its more obvious, distinct manifestations by physical violence once in a while, and we constantly suppress individuality in harmless and sometimes valuable forms in harmless and social violence.

But individuality is the life blood of civilization. Civilization was built by men who dared to be different from the mob. Its constructive work is always carried on by them.

By penalizing individuality, say the psychologists, we are impeding our progress at its source. This is why England produces four or five great writers for every one that we produce, with twice as great a population. It is why most important scientific discovery is made in Europe, while we merely make inventions. It is one reason why we rank about tenth among civilized nations in education, and why our universities are so far below those of Europe.

Our salvation lies in the development of persons who will remain from following crowds—and not only the lynching crowds and crowds that run to fires, and crowds that tar and feather reformers; but the less organized, less palpable crowd which runs after the same books, the same ideas, the same prejudices. If you would really raise yourself above the mob, we are told, you must form your own opinion of everything and it must be a logical opinion. When you do not know enough to form an opinion, you must admit it and hold your tongue. Do not further evidence. You must hold no unreasoned opinions, for these are either prejudices or superstitions. When a man does something that arouses your aversion, instead of rushing off to have him tarred and feathered, whether literally or figuratively, you must first examine the grounds of your aversion, to see whether it is justified, and second, you must consider the matter from the other fellow's point-of-view, and see whether he may not be right after all. In a word, you must always be logical, just, and tolerant—three things that the mob never is. You will often find yourself playing a lone game, but you will also find yourself growing stronger for every struggle.

Everett Dean Martin, in his book on crowds, says:

"Both the individual and society suffer from crowd-behavior. I know of nothing which today so menaces not only the values of civilization, but the very life of the nation, as the mob. It is a dangerous tendency which could be offset if the average citizen would awaken to the fact that he is an individual with a certain amount of native independence."

Our deference toward convention leads us to the extreme of distrusting anything out of the ordinary. A man who has opinions not closely conforming to the opinions of everyone else in his office, club, or home is regarded as a freak of nature. Sometimes it is true, he is—when his opinions are not backed by intelligent thought, the two factors—thoughtfulness and strong individuality—go together. One presupposes the other.

Martin sums it up by saying:

"What the social situation demands most is a different kind of thinking, a new education, an increasing number of persons who understand themselves and are intellectually and morally independent of the tyranny of crowd-ideas."

outside help, bound to dwindle away to nothing at all. That is the reason why they move heaven and earth not only to introduce machine guns and other warlike supplies from the United States, but to obtain expression of sympathy, boycott resolutions and other evidences of good will from American legislative bodies and public societies and associations. Without the help of the outside world, Sinn Fein Ireland cannot keep up its struggle much longer, and it is aware of it.

The south of Ireland—Sinn Fein Ireland—is offered what Ulster has. But it is clear that it will never be accepted though the members of such a body have been elected and refuse to take their seats. The spectacular parade and ceremony at Ulster will have little if any effect on the South of Ireland today, is a prediction that needs no spirit of prophecy to make.

In choosing the Whiskey Ring and the Hooch Battalion in preference to the people who believe in law and its enforcement, John J. Blaine appears to have stirred up a nest of political hornets.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

A PLACE.
Young man, eager to rise in the world,
Mark to the tale I tell:
Never put hand to the least command
Unless you will do it well.

You must strive for speed, but speed is vain
If poorly the work be done.
And the time you take for a good job's sake
Is time well spent, my son.

I have known the world and the ways of men
And the things I tell are true:
You must build your fame on an honest name
And the work that you can do.

Whatever you promise you must perform,
Never utter a pledge absurd;
By the faith you keep you shall sow and reap.
You must stand to your given word.

The signs of the road are posted clear
But the wrong-way's thick with doubt,
And day or night, if you keep to the right
You need never face about.

If you really tell and you give your best
To the tasks you find to do,
If your record's clear, you need have no fear—

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MORTON.

JUNE.
Ah, June, what fragrance on the breezes bloom
From dewy flowers and from woodland bells
I hear the elfins ring their mellow bells
Among the leafy boughs, and all alone
The spring purrs, truckling down those rocks
O'ergrown
With velvet moss; while yonder, harp-like, wells
The brook's song, and in the distance swells
The catenar's muffled thunder and the green
The pines which when they bend are laden with a blast.
The songs I keep repressed here in my heart
Are being sung by all the birds at last.
Ah, may they never from these wilds depart
Until the mountains topple and the sun
Grows small, and man's work on the earth is done.
—Friedrich Schenck Schlegeler.

The president who elects to stay in Washington all summer earns his salary.

We are fully convinced now, after reading 229 miles of press stuff, that both the president and the son of Andrew Alexander are now able to go up and take their meals and both will be able to stagger into the ring for the first round on July 2.

THE OLD STORY

Perhaps you can tell me of one
If not, I'll sure go mad.

Who's Who Today

SIR DOUGLAS ALEXANDER BART.

In recognition of notable war services rendered both by the son of which he is the head and by himself personally, King George V has made Douglas Alexander a baronet of the United Kingdom. His name appears in the Official Gazette in the list of birthday honors.

Sir Douglas Alexander Bart, is the president of a sewing machine manufacturing company and its subsidiary corporations all over the world. He was born July 4, 1864, at Halifax, Yorkshire, England, and the son of Andrew Alexander, well known Canadian horticulturist and botanist.

When Sir Douglas Alexander was a boy his parents went to Canada and settled in the city of Hamilton, province of Ontario, where he was educated at the Collegiate Institute and then at the University of Upper Canada. He was admitted to Alexander Bruce, K. C., called to the bar and admitted as a solicitor in chancery in 1888. After a short practice in Hamilton, he entered the service of the sewing machine manufacturing company, became a director of the company in 1896, was appointed vice president the same year and became president in 1905, succeeding the late Commodore Bourne.

None of the social scientists who have studied the masses believe that the crowd can be eliminated as a feature of human existence. But they believe that a dangerous tendency could be offset if the average citizen would awaken to the fact that he is an individual with a certain amount of native independence.

Our deference toward convention leads us to the extreme of distrusting anything out of the ordinary. A man who has opinions not closely conforming to the opinions of everyone else in his office, club, or home is regarded as a freak of nature. Sometimes it is true, he is—when his opinions are not backed by intelligent thought, the two factors—thoughtfulness and strong individuality—go together. One presupposes the other.

Martin sums it up by saying:

outside help, bound to dwindle away to nothing at all. That is the reason why they move heaven and earth not only to introduce machine guns and other warlike supplies from the United States, but to obtain expression of sympathy, boycott resolutions and other evidences of good will from American legislative bodies and public societies and associations. Without the help of the outside world, Sinn Fein Ireland cannot keep up its struggle much longer, and it is aware of it.

The south of Ireland—Sinn Fein Ireland—is offered what Ulster has. But it is clear that it will never be accepted though the members of such a body have been elected and refuse to take their seats. The spectacular parade and ceremony at Ulster will have little if any effect on the South of Ireland today, is a prediction that needs no spirit of prophecy to make.

WHAT TO EAT WHILE ON VACATION.

We have received numerous requests from readers about to go to the country for a vacation, and they desire to know about how much milk and eggs one should eat in order to build up the strength and blood, or something like that.

This year there should be plenty of good, fresh vegetables and fruit available in the country, and at vacation resorts. It is a fine time to be a vegetarian for a while and see how it feels. Especially for those who have more or less "stomach and liver troubles" due to excess of food and insubstantial food.

Green peas, string beans, asparagus, new potatoes, green corn, berries, lettuce, cabbage, onions, greens of all kinds, the list of appetizing and healthful foods is a long one.

Eggs do not build up strength and blood any more than potatoes or green peas do, perhaps not so much. Eggs are simply more concentrated nourishment. The chief fault of our diet is lack of bulk. The intestine is not given necessary exercise. Let the farmers put their eggs in cold storage or waterglass, and eat what the store so abundantly supplies in the summer time.

People with auto-intoxication, constipation, bilious tendency, so-called, dyspepsia, flatulency, and numerous other symptoms of digestive disturbance should strive to get away from the concentrated diet of city life and give the alimentary tube a vacation. A change is as good as a rest. Let the vacation diet be a radical change for the better.

When we take fresh country milk, we make the mistake of drinking plenty of it. Next to fried corn meal mush and well-made coffee, there is no delicacy to compare with milk fresh and warm from the cow, in the opinion of the writer, at these remarks. Then it is uncontaminated by human handling and not a culture medium for all sorts of germs; moreover, the natural ferments present in the milk, the salt, and the cream, which probably makes the milk more digestible than ordinary market milk.

Be a vegetarian for the period of your vacation and see how fine you will feel.

Q. When a hand is called in poker, is it necessary that the calling hand be shown?
A. C. Both hands must be shown, and if there are more than two hands in the final call, all must be shown to the dealer. The dealer's hands are a safeguard against collusion between two players, one of whom might have a fairly good hand and the other nothing; for by raising and calling back for the first time, the other player out of the pool. The pot should then be called and shown, the confederate simply saying, "That is good" and putting his hand in the discard.

Q. What animal sleeps the deepest while hibernating?
A. A. The jumping mouse, or kangaroo mouse, is a common wild rodent which lives up to its name, for it constructs a warm nest in which it spends the winter in a state of dormancy more profound than that of any other American animal.

Q. Why is the Duke of Edinburgh given the title "Defender of the Faith?"
A. B. C. This title has been borne by reigning sovereigns of England since the time of Henry VI. The title was conferred upon him by the Pope because of a book against Luther called "Assertio Septem Sacramentorum" which Henry VI. wrote in 1532.

Q. Is it true that Samuel J. Tilden left a large fortune? If so, to whom did he leave it?
A. C. F. At his death Tilden's wealth was estimated at more than $5,000,000. He left the greater portion to philanthropic purposes of which the Tilden Foundation fund of the New York Public Library received about $2,000,000.

Q. How many acres of land can be irrigated by the Elephant Butte dam?
A. E. S. The Reclamation Service says that approximately 160,000 acres can be irrigated by this dam.

Q. Why do Scotch soldiers wear kilts and sporrans?
A. J. H. F. The custom of wearing short kilts and sporrans is a relic of the native form of dress of the highlanders of Scotland. This includes the kilt and the tartan. Some regions still wear the full Scottish dress, while others wear the kilt with the kilt sporrans.

Q. What is the longest distance a baseball has been thrown?
A. J. H. F. The record for long distance throwing of a baseball was made by a man named J. H. F. who threw a ball a distance of 1,000 feet.

HOROSCOPE

The stars incline, but do not compel.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 1921.

Although Saturn is in benefic aspect today, according to astrology, Mercury, Venus and Jupiter are all strongly adverse.

There is a sign indicating a return to more conservative ideas and a settling down to a more normal development of persons hitherto inclined to be too advanced or too socialist.

Mercury is in a place indicating criticism for persons in important positions, especially those who are in places giving them great authority.

Newspapers and magazines will now devote a great deal of space to propaganda for reform of many sorts and educational methods will receive a great attention.

This is not a fortunate way for starting any new enterprise.

Losses caused by the stars making for dissatisfaction. There will be much pooling of apartment houses and new difficulties regarding rentals.

In Washington the progress to the summer session will be delayed by disputes with other powers, and even the possibilities of a clash. Mercury ruler of the seventh is well aspected by Jupiter and may prevent hostilities.

The position of Venus is favorable for theatres and the younger generation.

Trade and commerce are subject to the most unfavorable signs and there may be legislation that encourages enterprise.

Mortality may be high during the summer months when there should be great care in regulating the climate.

Holland and South Africa are to experience serious troubles, the stars foretell.

Great Britain is to appease the young class by the passing of popular measures in parliament, but a very uncertain period may be expected.

Persons whose birthdate is 11 should avoid letters that may be troublesome. A letter that is required. Children born on this day may be unsettled and restless. These subjects of Cancer often have great psychic powers and they are likely to be gifted in many ways.

A. J. H. F. The Medical Museum is part of the Smithsonian Institution. It comes under the surgeon general's office of the war department.

Q. What is meant by saying that a reserve officer in the navy has been re-entered the service to "confirm his rank?"

A. J. H. F. The Navy Department says that many officers having temporary commissions, retire to the reserve register for the regular service and serve the length of time necessary to entitle them to permanent rank. This carries with it a much higher rate of pay when retired to the reserve, since otherwise the pay is only $10 a year.

Bishop Says

Short Skirt

Is Blessing

Madison.—The short skirt is a blessing to emancipated women. It is only beginning to enjoy fully the world, which continues to grow better, Bishop Samuel Fallows, only living member of the class of '62, first University of Wisconsin graduating class, told alumni gathered here for their re-union Tuesday.

"Women are not growing, less moral," he declared. "Their appearance in short skirts is not an indication of a lowering standard. It is a blessing. The world is becoming a better place for all of us to live in."

The bishop although well past 80 is a close follower of university affairs. He has not been absent from re-union in years and is regarded as a necessary part of each commencement program.

'THE GIRL WHO HAD NO CHANCE'

By Marion Rubincam

CHAPTER LXV.

Looking backwards, Ruth saw that it was war which made her realize her dream. For the war made demand for things manufactured in factories, labor was in demand, wages went up, and the people from far back in the country who had never seen even so small a town as the one Ruth lived in began to flock to the factory centers.

Marktown caught the boom.

One day Riley, the real estate man, came into the office, looking bored and sleepy. Ruth began to take things up with him.

"Here are some leases made out for the old John Street houses. Do you want to look them over? And if you want to ask for them, go to the office, I'll pay the office rent, and I'll let you have it to the highest bidder. Then—"

Riley yawned a little.

"All right, you fix it up. What are you leasing the Park Avenue place for?"

"I asked $10 a month. It used to be $15, but people are coming here fast, and this man was clearly able to afford that."

"You're all right!" Mr. Riley opened his eyes for the first time and began to laugh. "I don't know why I ever come to the office, you can run it so much better than I could. Miss O'Neil, do you want to be a partner and take over the whole thing for half the profit? I'll pay the office rent, and I'll let you have it to the highest bidder. Then—"

That was one way that Ruth began to realize her dream.

"This winter I'm going to study law—at least at law bearing on real estate," she told Langley.

The man laughed.

"Will you never stop?"

"Why stop?" Ruth asked. "I have to make more money, and I want to be a success. Besides, she added with a change of tone, "the roof needs to be repaired, and they want $200 for it, and $200 to paint the house, which also is badly needed."

"When do you start your law studies?" he asked.

"Two evenings a week with old Mr. Johnson," Johnson was the first and oldest lawyer in Marktown, and had the reputation of being "very smart and slick."

"You're going to the Club dance Wednesday?"

"Yes, with a senseless little boy home from college. He's 22 and has the brains of a pig."

"Grandmother! And how old are you?"

Ruth looked at him seriously. Her blue eyes were always a little sad, and what she held a world of gravity in their depths.

"I'm 20," she answered. "But in years and responsibility and experience I'm the oldest person in the town."

"Not older than I!" From his great height the man smiled down upon her. Ruth liked his angular homely face immensely. She liked the large nose and the gray eyes, even the way his blonde hair was thrown back from his high forehead.

"They stood and smiled gravely at each other for a moment."

"We've both been through hard luck," Ruth said finally. "And we're both on the way out of it. Isn't it gorgeous to feel success almost within your grasp?"

"It is. But wait until we begin building out on the flats. They start filling in next week, and before frost they'll start the first block of modern cottages. Ruth, your percentage of this deal will make you rich."

"How rich?" she asked.

"Greedy!" was all he would answer. They met again at the club dance—among other things the girl had learned to dance very well indeed. At one time during the evening, Ruth's college smart and Langley's curly haired little girl partner danced together, so these two, a little tired, sat out on the veranda—the country club new bungalow a closed-in porch, furnished in cast-off wicker things.

"What will you do with your wealth?" the man asked.

Ruth looked in at the dancers and the lights and bright colors of the girls' dresses.

"Of course if all our plans go through we will be rich," she answered quietly. "Mr. Riley has made me his partner, that means I'll get about $2,000 a year. If he comes in on this idea of ours, as he will, his firm will make money and I'll have half of that—I'm contributing my word he has his capital and his reputation in town. Then I'm buying homes—and the percentage the Civic Committee voted me will help."

"And then you'll run to the city and spend it?"

In the half light he saw the look of pain that went over her face.

"I've nothing in town to spend it led appearance it will disappear in the freezing."

Caramel Ice Cream—One-half cup sugar, one cup hot water, one tablespoon gelatin, one-quarter cup cold water, one-half cup milk, two egg yolks, one-half cup sugar, two egg whites, one-half teaspoon vanilla.

Caramelize one-half cup sugar, add hot water. Soak gelatin in cold water and add to above. Stir in milk and gelatin is dissolved combine the two mixtures. Set in cold water and when beginning to set, fold in beaten whites and vanilla. If stickwherries are added do not caramelize the sugar.

Malted Ice Cream—This can be transformed into a dessert much like Bavarian cream by allowing one teaspoon of powdered gelatin to each cup of malted ice cream of ordinary richness. Put the malted cream in a double boiler or in a pan set in hot water, and when lukewarm add the gelatin, previously softened in a little cold water and dissolved in hot water. When thoroughly mixed with the warm cream, turn into a vat and set aside to become firm. Dealing while stiffening gives a better consistency. Where the ice cream is of several colors, add sufficient chocolate to give a one-color effect. Serve with whipped or plain cream.

Ice Cream (this recipe will make two quarts of vanilla)—Two cups scalded milk, one teaspoon flour, one cup sugar, one egg, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one quart thin cream or rich milk. Mix sugar and salt, add egg slightly beaten, and then cook in a double boiler fifteen or twenty minutes, stirring constantly at first. Remove from fire, cool, add the cream or milk and flavoring. SUGGESTIONS

Fly Poison—Mix thoroughly one-half cup of sweet milk, one egg yolk and one teaspoon each of sugar and ground black pepper. Spread on white plates wherever there are flies. When dry put out a fresh mixture. This is especially good because there is no danger of little children becoming poisoned by it.

Save the Advertisements that come in the mail, and keep the children supplied with paper for drawing pictures of home work practice in these days of high prices. There are many pages of good paper with one side blank which may be smoothed out and here is a special box in one corner of a cupboard or drawer.

Emergency Coat Hangers—When more coat hangers are needed than are available, roll a heavy newspaper or better, a large magazine, and tie tightly in the middle, and hang in the closet.

Capt. Jonah's Fortune

By JAMES A. COOPER
Copyright by Geo. Sully Co.

"Holly-holly!" ejaculated Cap'n Jonah. "The kettle has boiled over for a fact! All you another looney fellow like Life Truitt? Afraid of a woman if she has a little tad of money?"

"At least I respect myself—and Miss Pearl—too much to have it said that I address her because she expects to possess your fortune, Cap'n Jonah, when you are gone. Tom Pettit has already said so of this voice trembling. And what did you say to him?" demanded the old man.

"I didn't say much. I knocked him down," confessed Holmford.

"Who?" whispered the captain, his eyes snapping with excitement. "I'd like to have seen you do that. And I bet Pearl would too!"

"She did."

"She was there and saw the traces?"

"It wasn't a trace," explained Holmford, rather shamefaced. "He tried to hit me with a club, and I got at him first. Pearl saw it. With her own eyes? How'd she act?" demanded the eager captain.

"She cried. Of course she was frightened," the young man said, somewhat puzzled by the other's questions.

"Hem! She didn't throw herself on Tom an' cry 'cause you'd fetched him, did she?" exclaimed Holmford somewhat angrily.

"Looks then," observed Cap'n Jonah shrewdly, "as though you were much interested in Tom. Dunno how you could be. I reckon you air on a rival of his."

"If you please, Cap'n Hand," interrupted Holmford, "I will not discuss the matter at all. Miss Pearl is not for me. She should marry a man of equal fortune."

He turned abruptly, and instead of entering the store as had been his intention, he stormed along the road and up the easy ascent toward Tapp Point and the exposed sand cliff beyond which, at that moment, Lieutenant Truitt was searching for Sue Ambrose.

Cap'n Jonah allowed the young man to go without further speech, but he watched him, shaking his head thoughtfully.

"Whatever!" he muttered. "Dern the fortune, anyway! Look at that fellow! A young man, and he's got two young folks apart, then I have made a mess, and no mistake!"

Cap'n Jonah was only half an hour or so before Tom Pettit, realizing that the old man had brought into the kitchen something worse than the snow that stuck to his boots.

"What's got into you, Tom Pettit? Don't you know enough to accomp your boots in the porch?" fretted Sarah. "If you air rich, to be a rich man some day, you better learn how to behave nice."

Billy Whiskers

Fussy continued her story about the little puppy who threatened to steal her kittens.

"I laughed and passed the threat off as a joke, but the next day when I came home from a visit to a cat in the house next door I found Pettit and all my kittens gone, and then I remembered what she had said. I looked all over the house for them, even going into the spare room that no one is allowed to go into, unless there company in the house, looking under beds, in shoe boxes, down the cellar, under the woodshed, everywhere, in fact. I searched the premises over for three days, but not a kitten could I find, neither did Pettit appear. Then I went to Miss Lucy and mewed out my trouble, but she did not understand me and only said, 'What is the matter, Kitten, are you hungry?'"

"Then I told my trouble to Mary, the cook, but she only said, 'Send! Get from under my feet before I spill gravy on you!'"

"Then I went to the stable to tell Mram. He said, 'Hello, Fussy. I haven't seen you out here in the barn for a long time. How is your family this morning?'"

"At the mention of my family I began to cry harder than ever, and he said, 'Why, Fussy? You must be sick. Go and eat some extra and you will feel better.' This provoked me so that I started to run out of the barn, when I thought I heard a little kitten's mew. I stopped to listen, and sure enough, I must be right again, for where did it come from? Under the barn, in the mow, or behind the

Dinner Stories

Mother and daughter met in the living room just after breakfast and daughter remarked:

"Mother, I was in a good humor this morning, didn't I?"

"Heavens!" exclaimed the mother, suddenly remembering, "but remember, I forgot to ask him for any money."

Dr. William M. Sadler, a specialist of Chicago, said in a recent meeting of the Federation of Women's clubs:

"To live to be a hundred, the first requisite is to marry young. The married always live longer than the single."

"That is the chief reason why I favor a bachelor man. Another reason is that bachelors, coddled as they are, become very conceited."

"A pretty girl at a dance was waiting with a bachelor."

"There will be many sad hearts when I marry," the bachelor said.

"Go ahead, how many are you going to marry?" said the girl.

Charles Smith, who used to tramp the Kearney section, was summoned as a witness in a recent case of the Federation of Women's clubs. He was asked to state what he must be very exact in his statements.

After duly pondering the question, he replied: "He was what I should call a partial stranger."

"Before you knew him or you did not," said the coroner sternly. "There is no such thing as a partial stranger."

"Well," he answered, "I don't know how else to describe him. He was a one-legged man."

Why You Must Have Iron to Make Your Body Strong and Your Brain Keen

Alert and Powerful—Value of Spinach and Organic Iron to Help Make Rich Red Blood and Revitalize Wornout Exhausted Nerves

WITH PLENTY OF BLOOD AND IRON, YOUR BRAIN is the most wonderful thing in all creation but without these it is nothing. IRON TAKES OXYGEN from your lungs and carries it to your brain. Without iron your brain gets no oxygen; and without plenty of rich red blood and oxygen your brain becomes dull and heavy. YOUR INTELLIGENCE POOR, your memory fails, you DO FOOLISH THINGS, make bad decisions and you really amount to nothing, so far as accomplishing anything of importance is concerned.

Also without iron YOUR BLOOD BECOMES THIN AND WATERY and loses its power to change food into living cells and tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the full strength out of it.

THERE ARE 30,000,000,000,000 RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND EACH ONE MUST HAVE IRON.

When, as a result of iron starvation you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset, when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night; when your digestion all goes wrong, or you have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, or until you are in such a state of nervous exhaustion that you cannot do your day's work, but take organic iron with them to help enrich your blood and revitalize your wornout exhausted nerves. But be sure that the iron you take is organic iron and not metallic iron—iron which people usually take.

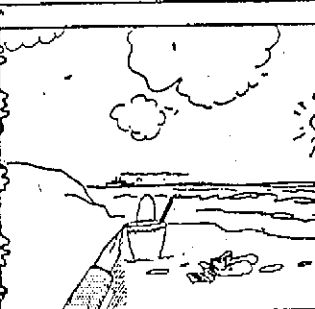

Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Organic iron may be had from your druggist under the name of NUXATED IRON. Nuxated iron represents organic iron in such a highly concentrated form that one dose is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating half a quart of spinach or one quart of green vegetables. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. For sale by all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD, GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

Today's Short Story

By GEORGE T. BYE

A Dun and Done

Sometimes a charming egg-crate will inscribe her for 'tation, with her name and address, on a snow-white egg and thus gain an introduction to a millionaire clubman. Or she is a lovely laundress who feels within a loved shirt bosom the biller door to the one whom it might concern: "Lonesome, Mabel."

My affair with the maddeningly lovely Angelica Wendell began even more indirectly.

I had a book from the library, "Hardy's Tour of the Durbervilles." In its pages I came across a folded letter, a dun from a dentist reading: "Miss Angelica Wendell, 89 Cliff Street, City. Your balance of $30 must be paid by the 1st of July or I shall inform your employer. I am surprised that a young woman of your evident breeding would attempt to evade an honest debt. Dr. Wyatt."

"Now Tess"—the story is a wonderful exercise for the emotions. It either has you jerming miserably in a corner or flying gayly like a kite. In the book's thrill my imagination was alive, and I saw the dun, and the girl, and the man whose character cannot be read by his face.

There was nothing to do but wait until morning and call on Dr. Wyatt. Him I found to be a quaint-eyed, the type of man whose character cannot be read by his face.

"So you are a friend of Miss Angelica Brown, eh? Name? Address? Thanks. Now let me call you. I shall find her this very minute. If I have to knock on the door she sleeps in."

Dumb, dazed, embarrassed, I actually, I realized the dentist had a good claim. I paid him, took a receipt and left.

I never found Angelica. Her name was not in the directory. But what- ever she was, I gloried in the thought she was moving about with so intilibrary to take out "Tess" for an hour. I found the book again enclosed a dun from Dr. Wyatt for Angelica Wendell, at a different address, where she also was unknown. I rushed to Dr. Wyatt furiously.

"No name—no crime," he answered steadily. "Working girls have to have their teeth attended to—sorry for them. I am out hundreds of dollars, you twenty. If I choose to put fakes down in strong romantic novels at the library, and the scheme works in bringing young men to the rescue— young men who easily get $20 worth of smiles in a year from these girls— what's wrong about it?"

"New, go," I gasped. "Will Angelica's father have dinner with me?"

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am doing a great deal of sewing for my friends and others also and don't know what to charge. My work has been satisfactory so far, but I do not want to charge on account of prices because this is the first I have done for outsiders. Living in a small place also makes me want to be fair and draw instead of discounting people from coming with their work.

There is nothing which varies much more than a dressmaker's charges. I would suggest that you time yourself at that work and charge at the rate of 50 cents an hour. Later when your trade is built up you can increase your charges. When a customer takes a dress to you, estimate on the time it will take you to make it, and charge accordingly.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 15 years old and in love with a boy about one year my senior. Every time I meet him he speaks, and if at a distance he waves. Do you think he cares for me? BROWN EYES.

You are too young to say that you are in love. If you remain it out you will realize that you only imagine yourself in love. You have imagined the boy to have all the noble qualities which you would like him to possess. He probably likes you as a friend and speaks or waves his greetings just as he would to any friend.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married a little over a year. A few days ago my husband and I received a letter from a friend of his inviting us to have dinner at her house. She used to be his sweetheart and then moved out of town. She was married about three years ago and now she and her husband and baby have moved back here to live.

I am at a loss about what to do. My husband says I must answer the letter and tell her we will be glad to come. He tells me that his regard for her was far in the past and that he is no longer interested in her, except that she is a fine girl and he thinks she and I can be good friends. Do you think it would be dangerous for us to accept the invitation?

By all means accept the invitation. The fact that your husband and the young man were friends at one time should not make the slightest difference. To let jealousy creep in would be the height of folly on your part. If you are sensible and realize that you are the woman your husband loved enough to marry, you will see that you have no cause to worry. Besides, she herself has chosen another besides your husband. There is no reason why you and she should not become close and congenial friends if you hold the right attitude.

ANXIOUS BLUE EYES.
You are very much too young to carry on a correspondence when love enters it. Have your mother write to the boy and ask him to return your letter. If she approves, she might tell him that if he will correspond in a friendly way and forget about love, you can write to him.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Hurlingham, England.—America's polo team today won the coveted International polo trophy by defeating Great Britain in the second match, 10 to 6. The Yanks won the series, two matches to none.

The United States scored the first goal. Two other goals for America followed shortly, making the score at the end of the first period, 3 to 0. By the end of the third period, the British had managed to tie over three points but the Yanks had gained two. Each added a goal a piece by the end of the fourth period.

Fast exhibitions of horsemanship will be demonstrated by the members of the local cavalry troop. The men of the tanks corps will perform riding stunts, in addition there will be track and field events participated in by the ball players of both competing teams which are open to the public.

They will be guests of the Chamber at the ball games. The opportunity of seeing such men as J. Ogden Armour, Dr. Frank Billings, the famous surgeon, and others should prove an added attraction.

Efforts are being made to bring Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, supreme commissioner of organized baseball, here on that afternoon to boost the game.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Racine Here Saturday to Clash With Tractor Crew

Off again for another couple of days, the Janesville Tractors sailed into the town of Columbus Wednesday afternoon to entertain the Irons' tournament at that place in a battle with Walter Lange's Milwaukee Red Sox.

When they got finished in that town, they will drop over to Portage on Thursday to play a second game with the Cream City outfit at the Elks' convention.

"Lefty" Smithson will work for the Tractors Wednesday, while "Smiling Bill" will mount the knoll on Thursday. "Smithy" left feeling better Wednesday after experiencing a sore wing during the past couple of days.

The entire outfit is chipper after its trip through Illinois. The boys are showing their best fighting spirit so far this year. Their journey through the Pacific states gave them a feeling of absolute confidence in playing with each other.

Fans in the vicinity of Springfield displayed wide-open arms to the Tractors on their appearance in the Capitol city. Centralia and Decatur was a repetition of the same treatment.

Racine Here Saturday.
The first home game of the Tractors comes on Saturday when the Racine Rubbers are coming down this way to play with the locals at the fair grounds. Both Smithson and Lathrop will work for the Janesville outfit here in that battle. On Sunday the Perring crew will run back up to Racine with the Rubbers and play in that town.

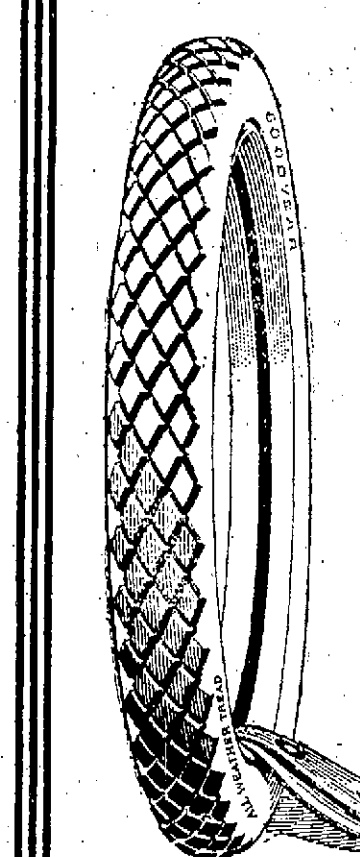

On July 2 and 3, the local players will appear on the home lot. The competitors have not been booked as yet, however. They will play out of town on the Fourth of July, going over to Danville for the big celebration there.

Badger Crew Primed for Race With Duluth Club

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis.—Sport fans of the middle west will turn to the regatta between the university of Wisconsin and the Duluth Boat club Saturday, as an indication of the renewed interest that is displayed in rowing here in the middle west.

After a lapse of seven years a Badger crew will square off against outside competition in a contest which will test much of the strength which the university can show with green material.

This is but the opening of rowing for Wisconsin, whose eight men have been in training only for the past year. Duluth presents a trained crew, the best in the middle west, and, it is believed, to many of the eastern crews.

But despite the odds against them, the men coached by the veteran mentor C. H. Vail, will put up a strong front. They have already scored a victory. Over the Lincoln Park Boat club of Chicago, and are hopeful of adding another before disbanding this summer.

Several hundred students and alumni are planning on being present at the regatta. They are taking special interest in belief that the Badgers are about to re-enter the Poughkeepsie races for next year. The crew leaves here Thursday evening for Duluth to prepare for the race.

3 MASKED HEAVIES AT CARP-S DUGOUT MYSTIFY REPORTERS

Manhasset, N. Y.—Mysterious things occurred Wednesday morning at Georges Carpenter's training camp and when an explanation was requested the answer came in a whisper: "Shhhh, it's a secret and we can't tell."

About eight o'clock a big limousine stopped at the front gate and the chauffeur hailed trainer Wilson and the latter came down and opened the gate. The machine pulled inside and three heavyweights stepped from it. To conceal their identity they pulled their coat collars about their faces and ran into the residence.

Then They Whisked Away
A few early birds who hung over the fence waited and watched. Soon they saw four men clad in bath-robos leave the backdoor and hasten behind the barn where Georges does his training.

Noises sounding like the tattoo of war upon a punching bag could be heard for 10 minutes. First one and then another of the robed figures fled into the house. The last appeared to be the challenger himself.
